WIRELESS WAVES.

The spectacular development of the wireless telephone commands more serious attention than any discovery with the recollection of the present generation. That it is bound to prove the greatest civilizing influence of the century there can be no doubt. It will far outstrip the talking machine and even the motion picture because its potentiality lies nearer to the root of things. When the American farmer can be brought into conversational contact with the remotest part of his country things are going to move. What is to happen to the local band when the boys and girls of every town and hamlet dance to the music of the world's greatest master of the jazz broadcasted from a central point. Business men will do well to give serious and immediate thought to this new development. Already the effect of the wireless is being felt in the talking machine industry. True human nature likes to pick concerts to its own liking, to "put on" the record that pleases for the moment, but when the standard of the ready made concerts, as it will, takes into consideration the variety of tastes and wishes the home reproducer is destined to the discard.

Quite apart from its commercial aspect, let us hope the government will not let slip by unused this great potential service for the people. Wireless communication can be made to lower the death rate, it can be made to check the growth of insanity, it can be the means of making healthier and happier mothers and children, it can spell the spread of sanitation, it can cure the cold and halt the fever. Its blessings can be reflected in the remote hamlets where plain God-fearing American people find their homes and do the work of the hour far removed from medical skill and simple social science. For the farmer the possibilities are limitless. Five years or even less should see in the cabinet of the United States a Secretary of Communications—the biggest job in America.
